

AKV ST. JOOST + PRATT COLLABORATION

This team project consisted in a semester long collaboration to produce two video conferences presentations. The first one being about reactions to materials posted by the team members regarding unexpressed wants/desires, and the second one an effort to find, observe and document those desires in the public space. The research, communication and creative process was recorded through a blog.

The virtual relationship was at times very demanding, because the dedication and coordination of efforts was not consistent. It was difficult to establish a professional and critical, yet casual connection with the rest of the team. The different expectations and contexts generated a significant challenge.
